I. INTRODUCTION

National Academy of Letters to be called "Sahitya Akademi", established by its resolution No. F.6-4/51-G. 2. (A) Dated 15 December 1952. Akademi was formally inaugurated on 12th March, 1954 in the Central Hall of Parliament, New Delhi and as per the Akademi's General Council recommendations it was registered as Societies Registration Act of 1860, on 7th January 1956. The functioning of an organisation is largely moulded by its officers. The officers of Sahitya Akademi, mentioned in its Constitution, are President, Vice-President, Financial Adviser and Secretary.

S. Radhakrishnan, philosopher-statesman and the then Vice-President of India delivered the inaugural address. He Said: "The phrase, Sahitya Akademi, combines two words. 'Sahitya' is Sanskrit and 'Academy' is Greek. This name suggests our universal outlook and aspiration. Sahitya is a literary composition; Academy is an assembly of men who are interested in the subject. So Sahitya Akademi will be an assembly of all those who are interested in creative and critical literature. It is the purpose of this Akademi to recognise men of achievement in letters, to encourage men of promise in letters, to educate public taste, and to improve standards of literature and literary criticism..."

Sadana (2012) writes in her book Sahitya Akademi as one for "literary nationality." In terms of literary production, to be literate is to know the literatures of each regional language and accord them equal status to the extent possible.

II. AKADEMI'S REGIONAL OFFICES IN INDIA

In 1956, a small production office was set up at Calcutta in the National Library premises, to look after the work of the National Bibliography of Indian Literature. In course of time this small production office grew into a Regional Office, Kolkata. This Regional Office looks after the publication and programme work in Assamese, Bengali, Bodo, Manipuri and Oriya, besides a part of publication work in English and Tibetan. It also handles programmes in the other north-eastern languages.

In 1959, another Regional Office was set up in Madras to look after the Akademi's work in the Southern languages. In 1990, Regional office Madras was shifted to Bangalore, though a small unit was retained in Madras. It looks after the publication and programme work in Kannada, Malayalam, Tamil and Telugu, besides a part of publication in English. It is located in Central College Campus, Bengaluru.

To implement more effectively the akademi's programmes in the Western languages another Regional Office was set up in Bombay in 1972. It looks after the publication and programme work in Gujarati, Konkani, Marathi and Sindhi, besides a part of publication work in English and Hindi.

North-East Centre for Oral Literature: A project office for the promotion of Tribal and Oral literature has also been set up in Agartala, to look after unrecognised languages of North-East.

III. LIBRARY SOURCES AND SERVICES

As we are all aware that Sahitya Akademi Library which functions under aegis of Sahitya Akademi, the National Akademi of letters, occupies an important place not only in library map of the capital, truly this library is the premier library of letters in the cultural map of the Nation. It has an enriched collection of 24 languages in literature, literary theory and criticism, philosophy, history and cultural studies, which enjoys an active and appreciative readership. Apart from this apex body, other reputed multilingual libraries that deserve mention here are National Library, Tulsi Sadan Library, Delhi Public Library, and Central Institute of Indian Languages etc.

Sahitya Akademi Library is one of the most important multi-lingual libraries in India with a rich collection of books (approx. 2 Lacs) on literature and allied subjects in 24 languages recognised by the Sahitya Akademi. It is being with highest attention to the building up of a good library of books in all the languages it has anything to do so essential for its working. These libraries are devoted to literature, literary theories, History of Indian literature, and criticism, women's studies, cultural histories and translation studies came into being the needs of clientele with specialised interest. So these libraries are special libraries which cater to the entire needs of entire fraternity.

Its specialized collections include publications on and by Rabindranath Tagore, Sri Aurobindo and Mahatma Gandhi. It also includes enriched reference books focusing mainly on Indian and World literature, philosophy, religion, art and culture.

During the first year of the Akademi 700 selected books were acquired for the Library. It was only in the end of November 1961 that the Library was shifted to its new premises in Rabindra Bhavan, New Delhi. It is made that the Sahitya Akademi library developed as a centre of study of Indian literature. Now the number of literary journals in various languages received regularly more than two hundred literary journal / periodicals in several languages are available in the Akademi libraries.

The library is open to public for reference and library started issuing books to those who have been registered has members. Initially, library has not charged any for membership. Now Akademi libraries offer refundable security deposits for membership. #### IV. CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTIONS

Akademi libraries are examples of superior coverage of Indian literature and allied subjects, offering efficient services. These libraries have acquired access for their users to a large number of resources in literature, literary theories, History of Indian literature and criticism, women's studies, cultural histories and translation studies. These resources have helped the research scholars and users. However, these libraries need to invest more in order to move to the next level or modernization so that they retain their position of eminence. Some of the areas need attention urgently are given below:

- a. Akademi Head Quarters library and its Regional Office Libraries should implement Wi-Fi facilities and adopt some of the web 2.0 techniques to make their home pages and web OPAC more interactive where users can communicate and contribute to the library.
- b. The Web-based On-Line Public Access Catalogue (WebOPAC) is one of the most heavily used databases in Akademi Libraries and is also accessible 24x7. All resources and services are accessible through library home page.
- c. Akademi libraries also organize training workshops, seminars and conferences on current topics of interest for library and information professionals to help them upgrade their knowledge and skills.
- d. Most of the library buildings are quite old and require major renovation not only to improve the facilities and ambience but also be able to create a variety of spaces for different types of user requirements. Space required fifty years ago and today is not comparable and yet, it remains an extremely insufficient space. Obviously, apart from funds, the actual space available determines the acquisition of books.

In fact, all library users are faculty, scholars, writers, screen and T.V. script writers, artists, etc., Hence, the timings of the library should be made available to cater the needs of the clientele

Circulation works such as renewal of books, overdue notices, online book reservations, and other library activities could also be brought online.
